Part 2...

A short story by Patty Cantwell

The continuation of Patty’s story is below. If you missed the first part you can read it in the Summer 2009 Edition of E-Magazine: <http://www.laubach-on.ca/Trainingpost/emagsep09.pdf>

At the hospital, Michael was being prepped for surgery. Cane hurried over to the hospital to see Kevin anxiously pacing up and down the hallway for news on Michael. Kevin decided to search through Michael's wallet to see if he could find the next of kin listed anywhere. Then he found the name of his cousin – Jenna Newman and her phone number. He phoned the number and it rang three times. Finally she picked up and answered in a groggy voice. Kevin said, “are you Michael Newman's cousin?”, she said, “yes”. He said, “Well you have to come to the hospital right away because your cousin Michael is in surgery because he was stabbed tonight.” In shock Jenna hurriedly got dressed and called for a cab. “Zeus stay.” Jenna paced back and forth and anxiously watched for the cab. The cab finally came.

In no time at all Jenna was at the hospital asking where Michael was. Jenna ran to the elevator and got on. As the doors opened she was shocked to see Kevin standing there. “Kevin what are you doing here?”. “I'm waiting to hear how my friend is doing in surgery. “Well what is your friend's name,?” said Jenna. “Michael Newman”, said Kevin. A look of surprise and worry came over Jenna's face. “Are you the one who called me?”, “yes that was me, I had no idea that was you”. “So Michael Newman is your cousin?” “Yes” said Jenna, “but I haven't seen him for a long time” All of a sudden Cane came out of the waiting room to say that Michael was out of surgery and the Dr. wanted to talk to them. “Cane, you remember Jenna that girl that we met by the bridge tonight, well she's Michael's cousin, her name is Jenna.” “Hi, Jenna” said Cane. “Maybe we should go and talk to the Dr.” said Jenna. Just then the Dr. came towards them. “Michael is out of surgery but he is going to need a blood transfusion as he's lost a lot of blood and unfortunately we've discovered that he's a rare blood type and we don't have it on hand.” “Well why don't we three see if we're a match” said Kevin. “Okay” said the Dr. and he went to get one of the nurses to do the blood work. It seemed like forever before the nurse came back to tell them that Cane was a match and that the blood transfusion had been successful and that Michael was stable condition but would have to stay in the hospital for a few more days.

Three days later Cane and Kevin went to testify in court with Michael who had just gotten out of the hospital hours before. Jenna also sat in the court room. As the guard brought the prisoner into the court room Michael froze as his eyes locked on the robber's eyes. In a flash Michael could see the bad crime happening all over again. The grey haired judge asked the robber to rise and state his name. "Billy Abbot", said the robber in a calm voice. Cane got called to come up and testify and after many hours the Judge came back with a verdict of five years in the federal prison in Genoa City.

Meanwhile Jenna went off to university in Genoa City to study to become a lawyer. Part of the course requirement was going to the federal prison to meet and interview a prisoner for a case study. As time passed Jenna felt more and more uncomfortable about this assignment. As she arrived at the prison a tall, unfriendly looking guard led her to the prisoner. Jenna was stunned when she recognized the robber. She turned to the guard and said, "get me out of here!" She left and went back to her university and told her professor the story of what had happened to her cousin. The professor said, "that's too bad, however you have to do this for your class assignment".

Jenna was terrified to go back to the prison to meet the prisoner face to face. Three weeks later she arrived back there, this time a short friendly looking guard let her in. She asked to meet with the prisoner. The guard went to get him. The prisoner sauntered into the room where Jenna sat nervously waiting for him. And then Jenna realized that the prisoner had not recognized her at all. The guard stood nearby as she began to talk to him. She continued to question him throughout the session but with many awkward silences.

Integrating Essential Skills into Lesson Planning

This introductory course had been designed for literacy tutors, practitioners, trainers and tutor trainees. Participants complete a variety of activities in eight sections to learn more about four of the nine Essential Skills: Reading Text, Document Use, Writing and Numeracy and how to integrate Essential Skills into lesson planning.

If you take the Integrating Essential Skills into Lesson Planning course we ask that you introduce yourself and take the Pre Module Participant Survey in the introduction. When you have completed all seven sections we ask that you complete the Post Essential Skills Module Participant survey in section 8. It will only take a few minutes to complete these two surveys and it will provide invaluable feedback for LLO.

WORD RIDDLE

This is an unusual paragraph. I'm curious as to just how quickly you can find out what is so unusual about it. It looks so ordinary and plain that you would think nothing was wrong with it. In fact, nothing is wrong with it! It is highly unusual though. Study it and think about it, but you still may not find anything odd. But if you work at it a bit, you might find out. Try to do so without any coaching!

Endeavor Series – Reading levels 3-8.

- Integrates reading and writing and is easy to use.
- Comprehensive Teacher's Guides and Student Books at each level
- Instructional strategy – active reading, guided practice
- Writing instruction—focus on structure and organization
- Good for multi-level classes, parallel across levels
- Great in ESL – emphasis on vocabulary discussion

Endeavor concentrates on comprehension and writing, with an emphasis on vocabulary. The approach to comprehension is similar to the one taken in Voyager, in that it gets the student thinking about what they are reading before, during and after the story. The series starts at level 3 and goes to level 8, and is not ideal for more beginning level readers as it doesn't work on decoding skills.

A great feature of Endeavor is that the same themes are carried through to every level, so that lesson 2 in level 3 has the same work theme that lesson 2 in level 7 has. This makes the series ideal for group work with differing skill levels.

Themes include health, work, housing and transportation, consumerism and money.

Challenger –Second Edition

We are also excited to introduce a new face on a classic series.

Challenger has given its books a facelift, so you'll see an updated look, some new content and some new informational articles with topics such as cell phones, internet dating, 21st century job search, global warming. The new books can still be used with the original Writing for Challenger for all but a few stories.

New Writing for Challenger 5 to 8 – picks up where 1-4 leave off and helps prepare students for GED.

Hiding Behind The Book

I struggle with reading. When I was a child reading was not encouraged at home or school. I felt “pushed away” when I was sent to a resource room. Being one of four girls with parents who came from Malta made it difficult.

One day, when Genna, my five-year-old daughter was at school, I was bored so I went to the public library. Knowing that reading was difficult for me, I went and asked the staff for help. I told the lady at the desk that I had a hard time reading. I did not hide it this time. I normally would not let anyone know that I struggled because I was embarrassed. She showed me an area that was for teens and what was popular; Mates, Dates by Cathy Hopkins. I looked around and found a series that I was willing to try. After reading the first book, I got the next, and next. I was hooked! I told myself that I would read every night.

I look back now and I am proud and amazed that I did it. I’ve read 10 books, and as a result I enjoy reading. I am happy that I pushed myself. I have been attending Adult Literacy and Basic Skills, in Brantford. We do a lot of reading individually and as a group. I feel I have made a lot of progress. Not only am I reading myself, but I have Genna going to library classes and reading as well! I no longer feel like I am hiding behind the book.

When One Door Closes Another Door Opens

I have always worked from the age of fourteen, not always at good paying jobs, but they were jobs just the same. I worked for a company called Incom Top Tape and Label for nine years. In two 2008 I quit that job take a job closer to home and because I was not happy there anymore. I worked for Mott Manufacturing for 6 months and was then laid off.

This is when the fun began, not! You have to file for unemployment which, if not done correctly, will cost you a great deal of time and some headaches. Dealing with the government is not an easy thing. If you don’t do things their way things can be very difficult for you. They have you over a barrel if you make a mistake because they control your money.

One good thing about being laid off this year is that the government has put a lot of money into the system. There is a program called Second Career. This program allows people who want to go back to school to change their careers, if they wish to. I have enrolled in this program. First, I had to figure out what I wanted to go back to school for. Then I had to start a paper trail. This in itself can be a daunting task. You have to get an appointment with Mohawk Assessment, this can take weeks. So, you’re in a hurry to wait. Once you go to that appointment and figure out what you want to do, you may need to upgrade your schooling. This can be a long process. There are a lot of people who want to see you succeed in what you do. That means a lot of people are behind you and supporting you.

Once you do your upgrading you have to apply at the college you wish to go to.

This can be a scary and confusing thing to do as well. Once you get accepted you’re on your way to a new career.

I will be attending the Literacy Council from June to December/09 as well as Adult Literacy and Basic Skills. This is to upgrade my spelling, writing and math. I did apply at St. Lawrence College for a Vet Assistant Program and was accepted. Three weeks later the college called me to inform me that the course had been canceled. This left me in a bind. I applied at Sheridan College as well but needed a grade 11 biology credit which I did not have. I tried to enroll at Mohawk College for a biology credit but was too late. I also enrolled in a correspondence course but found it difficult. Sheridan College sent me a letter offering a conditional acceptance into their program but I had to write a science test for them. If I passed I would be accepted. I wrote their test and passed! Now I’m going to college in January 2010 in the Animal Care Program, if I get approved through Second Careers.

Stay tuned.....
